STAFF CORRESPONDENT OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

VERA CRUZ, APRIL 22.—UNDER THE COVER OF A BOMBARDMENT FROM THE UNITED STATES WARSHIPS IN THE HARBOR, HEAVY DETACHMENTS OF BLUEJACKETS AND MARINES WERE LANDED TODAY TO REINFORCE THE AMERICAN TROOPS WHO SEIZED THE CUSTOM HOUSE AND OTHER STRATEGIC POINTS OF IMPORTANCE ON TUESDAY AND TO TAKE THE REMAINDER OF THE CITY.

The reinforcements were landed from the battleships Arkansas, Vermont, New Jersey, New Hampshire and South Carolina and brought the army of occupation up to 4,000 men. This force is commanded by Captain William R. Rush, of the dreadnaught Florida.

Immediately after the arrival of reinforcements the United States forces extended their operations and began the seizure of all the sections of the city not already dominated by the bluejackets and marines.

The shelling of the city was ordered to quiet the fire from Mexican soldiers and irregulars, which had begun shortly after daybreak. Another reason for the bombardment was the refusas of the Mexican authorities, both military and civil, to answer imperative demands for the surrender of Vera Cruz without further armed resistance.

Up until an hour before daybreak the city had been comparatively quiet except for scattering shots.

Begin Shelling City at Daybreak

Just at daybreak the warships got their artillery into action, and the big guns began hurling shells into the southern part of the city, where activity was reported among the Mexicans.

Great damage was done by the bombardment. The southern part of the city was shelled first, after which the bombardment was directed to the western section.

Rear-Admiral Badger sent a messenger to the Jefe Jolitico, asking for the co-operation of the municipal authorities in keeping order. Among the reinforcements were the marines under Major Smedley Butler, who had been rushed down the coast from Tampico.

General Gustavo Maas, commander of the port, and most of his soldiers have disappeared. It is reported that they have fled to Soledad, the town northwest of Vera Cruz, where the Mexican and Interoceanic railroads effect their junction.

Rear-Admiral Badger's division of dreadnoughts of the Atlantic fleet arrived here early this morning, and were anchored off the harbor. It was still dark when they arrived, but the salute from Admiral Fletcher's flagship, the Florida, gave notice that they had come.

With the arrival of Admiral Badger's ship and those from Tampico under command of Rear Admiral Mayo, the American commander will be able to land 15,000 marines and sailors.

The American marines and jackies who had advanced along Montezinos street yesterday afternoon, and were fired on without warning, are holding the railroad station, the custom house and several of the storehouses belonging to the customs service.

Heavy Guard for Consulate

Machine guns have been mounted at important points about these structures and a very heavy guard has been stationed about the American consulate, where Consul Canada during the night directed the departure of American refugees to the steamers Esperanza and Mexico.

Intense anxiety was caused here today by the failure of the third section of a special train bringing Americans from Mexico City to arrive.

DECLARE BRYAN "RESIGNATION" NONSENSE.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The report sent out by a financial news agency today that Secretary of State Bryan had resigned today was characterized as "absolute nonsense" at the White House.

GAS LIGHT BILL FIGHT BEFORE COUNCIL TODAY

Spirited opposition to a ten-year gas-lighting contract which Mayor Curley wishes to have the City of Boston sign with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company is slated to develop at a public hearing which is to be given today by the City Council. A quarter of a million dollars yearly is involved.

Under the Boston City Charter all contracts over $1,000 must be advertised for competitive bids, but the Mayor, upon request of the Commissioner of Public Works and for good reasons stated, may dispense with the advertising feature.

Mayor Curley had Louis K. Rourke, Commissioner of Public Works, make such a request to him. The ground put forward was that there would be no bidders.

But the Public Lighting Service Corporation of New York did notify the Mayor on March 19 last that it wished to bid on the Boston gas lighting. The company requested information as to requirements and so on.

The company received no answer to this letter. But, on the day its letter was received, Commissioner Rourke hurried the gas contract—an electric lighting contract also—to the Mayor, who hastily approved both.

On March 21 the New York company's lawyer asked Mr. Burke for information and was told that a contract had been executed with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, that it would be sent to the city government in two days, and that it was a private matter, anyhow.

On the 23d, Mayor Curley did send the contract to the City Council, urging its acceptance. On motion of Councillor Coulthurst the contract was held up for investigation.

Today's hearing will give the first chance for the opposition to be heard. It is claimed, in the first place, that the New York company's contract will save the city more than $100,000.

In the next place, the contract the Mayor favors calls only for a sixty candle-power lamp. The New York company stands ready to install 10,000 or more of its new boulevard gas lamps of seventy-three candle-power.

It offers to install, maintain, light, extinguish and repair them for ten years for $19.85 cents per lamp.

Since these lighting matters arose some independent investigations have been in progress. The Boston Chamber of Commerce has been probing both gas and electric lighting contracts at request of the City Council. So has the United Improvement Association. Reports from both organizations are to be submitted at today's hearing.

Next week there will be another hearing—on the electric lighting contract. The Mayor wishes a contract signed with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, which will cost the city $500,000 a year. There is opposition, likewise, to this proposition.

ALL THE PUPILS OF THE SAUGUS HIGH SCHOOL ON STRIKE

The entire body of pupils at Saugus High School, about 275, struck today in defence of Principal James F. Butterworth and paraded the town, with banners, demanding that the school board refuse to accept the principal's resignation.

Today's demonstration by all the school boys and girls followed a preliminary strike yesterday by fifty of the boys.

The pupils assembled in front of the school at 8:30 but none went in. Led by Roland Mansfield, Jr., son of Police Captain Mansfield, who is also truant officer, they formed in columns of four by classes.

The pupils had evidently come prepared, for Mansfield had a drum, which he beat sturdily, and there were two banners to be borne in the line.

The boys' banner read:

"We object to being called gutter-snipes."

The girls' banner read:

"We want Principal James F. Butterworth back."

EVERYONE MARCHED.

Everyone marched, even to the smallest freshman. The cheering, banner-waving column wound its way through the streets to the home of Principal Butterworth on Robinson street. There cheers were given for Mr. Butterworth. The latter, who has steadily counseled the pupils to do nothing defiant, came out on the front steps and waved his hand at the strikers but made no remarks. Then the strikers took up their line of march to Cliftondale square.

No attempt to stop the parades was made by the townspeople or police. The fact that the leader of the strikers, young Mansfield, is the son of the police captain and truant officer combined was commented upon.

Meanwhile the high school teachers waited in their building. Since the resignation of Principal Butterworth last week the school has been in charge of Sub-Master George L. Beach.

The trouble in Saugus High School arose from criticisms Principal Butterworth made of some of his teachers to the school board. Four years ago Mr. Butterworth was engaged as high school principal by the school board which, at that time, consisted of ex-State Senator Frank P. Bennett, Henry T. Claus and Henry T. Turner.

FEMININE MAJORITY.

Since that time the School Board has been increased to five, with women members elected until there is a feminine majority. The present board consists of Chairman Joseph G. Bryer, Secretary Mrs. Anna S. Hastings, Charles L. Davis, Mrs. Mary A. Hanson and Miss Clara J. Calley.

Mrs. Hastings has been on the board a year. The other two women members were elected only a month ago.

Recently Principal Butterworth recommended certain changes for next year in the teaching staff. Those affected are said to have protested vigorously to the school board, especially to the women members. They are said to have accused the principal of undermining discipline. The school board gave Mr. Butterworth to understand that he would not be re-elected and that his resignation at the end of the school year would be acceptable.

Principal Butterworth resigned immediately, leaving the school without a head two months from graduation. This precipitated the pupils' strike.

Mexican Women Plot to Strangle Every American Child

LONDON, April 22.—The London Sketch prints an interview with a London woman who has just returned from Mexico, in which she states she overheard a conversation between two Mexican women of superior station before leaving, to the following effect: "If the Americanos bring about armed intervention, we will, with our own hands, squeeze the life out of any little American children we can find."

JUDGE UPHOLDS DISMISSAL OF CHIEF CHAINEY

Judge Albert D. Bosson of the Chelsea court today sustained the action of the Revere Board of Selectmen in removing Clair P. Chainey from the office of chief of police several weeks ago. Charges of "Neglect of duty," "Joying riding" in the police auto" and other charges were prefered against him by Chairman Walter White of the selectmen, and he was discharged. The direct reason, however, was his failure to raid the Lynnway Club, last Summer.

The case has aroused much interest among the residents of Revere, and the courtroom has been crowded for the three weeks that the trial was in progress. All of the evidence was handed in last Thursday, and today the court gave its decision. Judge Bosson's finding is as follows:

"The court having reviewed the action of the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Revere in making an order removing the said Chainey from office as member of the police force of the said town, which office is classified under the civil service rules of the Commonwealth, and having heard the witnesses, and it not appearing that said order was made by said board without proper cause or in bad faith, the Court hereby affirms the said order, by this board.

(Signed)

"ALBERT D. BOSSON."

CHAUFFEUR'S WIDOW FOUND TO BE WITNESS

PITTSFIELD, April 22.—Awaiting the District Attorney's summons to see if she can identify Malcolm Gifford, Jr., as the man in the car on the night of the slaying, Mrs. Frank J. Clute, widow of the Albany, N. Y., chauffeur who was killed on the road leading from Albany to Troy, on the night of April 14, 1913, and for whose alleged murder Gifford, son of a wealthy manufacturer in Hudson, N. Y., is now being held a prisoner, is now in Pittsfield.

Mrs. Clute is employed at the General Electric works of this city. Her maiden name was Miss M. Ethel Schreiber, and she is working under that name. It is very likely that Mrs. Clute will be called as a witness in the case against Gifford, as she was one of the last persons known to have seen her husband previous to his tragic death.

The elder Gifford defends his son.

Judge Fallon and Attorney Mahar Clash on Evidence

Judge Fallon fined Frank Granda of No. 156 Dorchester avenue $50 for keeping and exposing for sale intoxicating liquor, in the South Boston court today, but not before there had been a spirited clash between Attorney Peter Mahar and the judge. Granda appealed and was held in $200.

The clash came when Mahar fruitlessly objected to certain evidence. Mahar turned and whispered to Granda:

"The only thing to do is to appeal."

Judge Fallon said: "My hearing is still pretty good, Mr. Mahar. I heard you."

Mahar—Yes, I did advise appeal, in view of your stand.

Judge Fallon—All right. I'll give you something to appeal from.

And he imposed a $50 fine.

CARDINAL'S NIECE WEDS NEW YORK MAN

This is the wedding day of Cardinal O'Connell's niece, Mary Louise O'Connell of Brookline. She and James S. Ryan, a wealthy New York railroad contractor.

The wedding hour was 10 this morning. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bridal party included Miss May McGaffee, maid of honor; Miss Geraldine Ryan of New York, Miss Virginia Sullivan of Chicago, Miss Rose Fitzgerald and Miss Miriam Finnigan as the bridesmaids.

Miss Josephine O'Connell, sister of the bride-elect, was flower girl.

C. J. Ryan, brother of the groom-elect, was best man.

The ushers included: Joseph E. O'Connell, brother of the bride-elect; Hugh Nawn of Boston; C. J. McLaughlin of Georgetown University; H. H. Brown, Raymond McNulty, Clifford Cavanaugh of New York.

The bride looked charming in gown of ivory white satin with a full court train. The gown was trimmed with rose point lace, with which she wore a rose point veil, crowned in a cap of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies and white orchids.

BEAUTIFUL GOWNS.

Miss May McGaffee, who was maid of honor, wore a gown of orchid tinted taffeta, with which she wore a Marie Louise model of leghorn poke hat with lace, and trimmed with dainty orchid tinted flowers. She carried a sashed basket of orchids and white lilies.

The four young bridesmaids, who included Miss Geraldine Ryan of New York, Miss Virginia Sullivan of Chicago, Miss Miriam Finnigan and Miss Rose Fitzgerald, looked very sweet in gowns of apple green taffeta trimmed with cream lace, with which they wore Camille Roger models of leghorn wattteau hats, trimmed with green bows. MISS SULLIVAN IS MARRIED TO W. T. M'CARTHY

The wedding of Alderman William T. McCarthy, of Somerville, second assistant district attorney of Middlesex county, and Miss Nellie Frances Sullivan, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Nuptial mass was celebrated by the Rev. Thomas F. McCarthy, brother of the groom, pastor of St. Clement's Church, North Medford. The bride was gowned in white crepe meteor with duchess lace; the veil was caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss Marion E. Sullivan, sister of the bride, was maid of honor.

TRINIDAD, Colo., April 22.—Resumption of the battle between the striking coal miners and militia, which cost the lives of at least 26 persons, two-thirds of whom were women and children, was momentarily expected today. Early today the militia brought up machine guns to rake the strikers' position at the first hostile move. The miners' ranks are being swelled hourly by men who tramped overland carrying guns and ammunition from neighboring union camps. Advices from the strike zone today said that the list of dead resulting from Monday's battle might reach 45.

SET ALOFT THE FLAG AS WE WIPE OUT THE INSULT

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

Huerta's was the insult; Villa's was the crime;
Tell us not that we shall set the one above the other.
Heaped up were indignities, time on time on time;
Now they all shall vanish in the weltering war-cloud's smother
Bear to every village, Acapulco to Tuxpam,
The lesson that they shall not spew their spite on Uncle Sam.

Let us not our vengeance vent on one man's surly head.
Rapine, red atrocity and murder high have piled
The debt that only can be paid in equal toll of dead.
Wise and firm our punishment—a Master to a Child—
Teach a sober lesson to the whole atrocious clan
Bear the Yankee justice from Juarez to Yucatan

North and South and East and West, drive the message home;
Make their taunting "Gringo" read a warning, not a jeer.
Flash to every hamlet in the land the, "We come!"
Plant in every hostile heart the hatching egg of Fear;
Stiffle into silence the Dictator's brazen brag.
North and South and East and West, set aloft—The Flag!

Jackies See the 'Queen of Movies'

One hundred and eighty officers and men under orders to sail for Mexican waters tomorrow, all from the battleships now at the navy yard, were at the "Queen of the Movies" at the Colonial last night. Accompanied by their wives and sweethearts, they filled six boxes and several rows in the orchestra, with a large number of seats in the balcony and the centre section.

Special decorations consisting of the ensign and the international code signal flags were used in honor of the event. Spelled out with bunting, "Welcome," and "Salute the Flag" appeared in different parts of the theatre. The orchestra played "The Star Spangled Banner" at the close of the performance, while the entire audience rose and sang the national anthem.

HOLD 5 PENDING PROBE OF DEATH OF GARDNER MAN

FITCHBURG, April 22.—Five men are being held by the police, pending the investigation of the death of Emil Vaginet, twenty-one, of No. 302 Parker street, Gardner, whose body was found by children in the Nashua River. Vaginet had been missing for three months.

The men held are Hugo Wilkari, Placido Le Blanc, Francis Gingras, Charles Minus and Francis Pirole, who are said by the police to have been in the company of Vaginet when he left Gardner on January 20 to go to Fitchburg to look for work. The men deny this.

There was a cut an inch and a half long on the head, which, however, may have been caused by the fall over the dam. The pockets of the clothes were emptied and turned inside out. When Vaginet left home he had a gold watch. This was missing.

ENRICO CARUSO, the noted tenor, who stoutly denies the breach of promise charge of Miss Mildred Moffet of New York.

NEW YORK GIRL SUES CARUSO FOR $100,000

NEW YORK, April 22.—Enrico Caruso today declared there is no foundation for the $100,000 breach of promise suit filed against him by Miss Mildred Moffert, a striking brunette, of this city. The papers were served on him at the Hotel Knickerbocker, but he refused to discuss the case and referred all questions to his counsel, Alfred E. Seligsberg.

Irving L. Siegler, counsel for Miss Moffert, notified Caruso last week that the action was in his hands. Caruso received the notification Friday and arranged immediately with his counsel to take charge of the case.

Mystery surrounds the identity of the plaintiff, although it is known she was acquainted with Mr. Caruso for some time in this city. She was a frequent attendant at the opera.

The complainant charges that in April, 1909, at a West Eighth street address she promised to marry Caruso, and he in turn promised to marry her. She asserts that she announced the engagement to friends and the defendant also announced it to professional acquaintances and friends.

Glimpse of Death Revolver Unnerves Madame Caillaux

PARIS, April 22.—An automatic revolver similar to that with which Mme. Caillaux shot Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro, was used by Henri Bonnard, the examining magistrate at the final hearing to demonstrate how the crime was committed.

Madame Caillaux became unnerved during the examination and caused a temporary suspension of the proceedings. She afterward declared it was only on entering Calmette's office she moved the safety clutch on the revolver and reiterated that she had no intention to kill M. Calmette.

Robert B. McCall, M. D., Cincinnati, O., writes: I have just left a lady patient suffering from an obstinate case of vomiting. A week ago she first dose of anti-kamnia tablets was given and the nervous excitement, mental worry and gastric intolerance rapidly yielded. The case was a typical one and the result was attributed to the influence of this preparation. Ask for A-K tablets.—Ohio Medical Journal. ••

MILKMAID MISS PEATE VISITS VANDERBILTS

NEWPORT, R. I., April 21.—Pretty rosy cheeked "farmerette" Miss Susannah Peate, the English milk maid of Chester, England, arrived in Newport today to visit her brother, George Peate, head coachman for Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, which position he has occupied ever since Mrs. Vanderbilt took her sudden departure from Oakland Farm when she was Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt.

Miss Peate is pleasantly located at the little cottage occupied by her brother and his wife on Coggenhall avenue, where are also located the Vanderbilt stables, of which he is in charge.

Here Miss Peate will have a chance to assist her sister-in-law and continue the complexion beautifier of milking cows and feeding the chickens, for Miss Peate holds to the idea that fine complexions are not to be found along the lazy road of ease and luxury.

Miss Peate declares that Newport is lovely but not another word will she utter.

When the reporter begged for a picture of Miss Peate her brother threw up his hands and became quite wrathy.

"What do you think? I am working for a living. Do you want me to offend Mrs. Vanderbilt? Not on your life will I give you a picture."

When Susannah was admonished for talking in New York, she said she had no idea it would make such a noise. "Such a little thing."

Adams Is Freed; Think Girl Bride Took Her Own Life

NORWAY, Me., April 22.—William Adams was released when the county authorities became convinced his step-daughter, Mrs. Ethel Maud Cummings, whom he was charged with slaying, shot herself. This action followed the finding of a letter to her husband in which Mrs. Cummings threatened "to blow her head off."

Charles R. Morey, Mrs. Cummings's cousin and neighbor, wanted as a witness, has returned from West Stoughton, Mass.

Release Girl Held on Spite Message

Miss Vera Dillon, whom the police held at the dock when the Arabic arrived last Friday, has been released, as it was learned the cablegram on which she was held was sent through spite and without foundation.

Water Main Bursts; Subway Flooded

3 Big Lofts in Addition to My Regular Storage Space

Were Required to Accommodate this Vast Stock of Shoes

Clipping From Boston Post Saturday, April 4

So you can see that notwithstanding the heavy selling of last Thursday, Friday and Saturday, I have scarcely made any impression on it as yet. Indeed for the opening of the sale I opened up only one of the lofts and now I will open loft number two to start the second week with a rush tomorrow. This means values as good if not better than those of last week, as my men have had more time to sort and throw out shoes that I did not want to handle on account of poor condition. 3600 pairs of these were sold by me last week to a big Lincoln St. Jobber at 79c per pair—an example of how remarkably good these shoes are considered to be by expert shoemen.

In this big sale I will offer no goods which are not of practical value. The shoes which were burned and thus made unfit to wear have been removed, and for the most part the stock which remains and will be sold is only slightly affected by smoke or water. Some of it has not been touched at all and is absolutely perfect.

A Single Drop of Water Gives You the Bargain of a Lifetime——Sale Begins Tomorrow at 8:30 A. M.

For Convenience in Selling, I Have Divided This Stock Into 4 Big Lots at the Following Prices:

A WORD ABOUT THE W. H. McELWAIN CO.

To convince you that this is absolutely the greatest shoe sale ever held in Boston, I want to say a few words about the W. H. McElwain Co. and their business reputation. To begin with, they are acknowledged to be the biggest shoe firm in the world, with an output of nearly 18,000,000 pairs of shoes annually. They are rated in Dun's and Bradstreet's for millions of dollars, and have probably more financial power than any other shoe house in America. Their shoe stocks include almost every kind of footwear you can imagine for men, women and children—to retail at from $2.50 to $5 per pair.

Their local establishment—the Interstate Shoe Co.—carried a big stock of goods of this character and at the time of the fire their several big floors were fairly loaded with new Spring goods recently received.

I have bought every pair of shoes salvaged from the fire at practically my own price, and I will offer them in this sale at about one-half the cost of making in most cases. WM. SHEINWALD.

ADVANCE OF AMERICAN ARMY ON MEXICO CITY SOON TO BEGIN

HUERTA DEMANDS CHARGE'S RECALL

WASHINGTON, April 22.—General Huerta has asked for the recall of Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy and his aides at Mexico City.

This announcement was made by a high government official today. The State Department withheld comment on the announcement and did not indicate whether it would hand Senor Algera, the Mexican charge here, his papers.

The demand for recall of an envoy under such critical conditions as now prevail is practically equivalent to a declaration of war.

The receipt of this news from Mexico City followed closely on repeated rumors from El Paso, Galveston and other border places to the effect that O'Shaughnessy had been slain in the Mexican capital.

Inquiries by the State Department failed absolutely to get any confirmation of these distressing reports, and the demand from Huerta for the recall of the American charge of affairs is taken to strongly indicate the falsity of the rumors.

The first rumor came from Galveston to the effect that O'Shaughnessy had been slain in Mexico City, and had hardly been read when another was received from El Paso, couched in almost the same wording.

A later dispatch from Galveston said there had been no cable or telegraphic information to give truth to the first report.

State, war and navy avenues of information were besieged to get the truth, but none of these news sources was able to get information of any kind.

There was a general feeling of relief with the receipt of the dispatch from Mexico City, stating that O'Shaughnessy's recall had been demanded by Huerta.

Later today the Mexican embassy disclaimed any knowledge of the O'Shaughnessy report.

Still later at the State Department Mr. Bryan said:

"I place no credence in the rumors. I am sure that we would have received this information from some source by this time if it were true."

WILL TURN DICTATOR'S OWN GUNS UPON HIM

VERA CRUZ, April 22.—The seizure of the 2,000,000 rounds of ammunition and 250 field guns from the German liner Ypiranga today will prevent Huerta from waging a long war, as his munitions are nearly exhausted.

The guns and ammunition will be turned against the Mexican dictator and his troops by the American invading force which will march on Mexico City in a few days.

The war materials were seized by the American marine when the steam docked at Vera Cruz. No opposition was offered by the commander of the Ypiranga to the seizure of the guns and ammunition.

He first indicated that his ship would come into the harbor under the direction of the American fleet and that he would obey the orders of Admiral Fletcher.

Thus the United States has been enabled to avoid diplomatic complications with Germany and has added materially to her strength at Vera Cruz. The guns and ammunitions will be paid for by the United States government.

INCREASE BODY GUARDS OF THE PRESIDENT AND BRYAN

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Secretary Bryan has organized an armed bodyguard and additional secret service operatives have been detailed to watch over President Wilson. The uniformed police and plain clothes men on duty about the White House and State, War and Navy buildings have been heavily reinforced and a police guard has been established at the embassy.

Secretary Bryan has had several of the messengers of the State Department sworn in as deputy United States marshals in order to permit them to bear arms and serve as his personal bodyguard.

A SCIENTIFIC WAY TO REMOVE UNSIGHTLY HAIR

Apply a few drops of El Rado, the liquid hair remover, on the growth; after washing off with a little plain water not a trace of it will remain. The ingredients in El Rado are used by many physicians for exactly the same purpose, which proves conclusively how perfectly harmless it is. This wonderful preparation is the result of a long series of scientific experiments, and is proving a veritable godsend to women troubled with hair growths on lip, chin, cheek, neck or arms. Use a simple application of El Rado to saturate the hair, which is thoroughly dissolved, and in a few moments is gone, leaving the skin exceptionally clear and velvety. The action of El Rado is absolutely safe, sure and thorough. El Rado is coming to be regarded by society women as indispensable as face cream or toilet powder. Test it on your arm; prove for yourself it will do everything claimed, your money back if you are not entirely satisfied. M'QUEEN PREDICTS A HALF-YEAR CAMPAIGN NEEDED TO CONQUER HUERTA

TELLS OF DICTATOR'S BRUTALITY

The Rev. Peter MacQueen, war correspondent, lecturer and traveler, who was in Mexico during the Madero-Diaz revolution, said today that Wilson's policy of "watchful waiting" had been going on too long. He added:

"The policy of watchful waiting, I am inclined to think, is a pity. There is nothing to wait for. There is no chance under Huerta or Villa for any government. I was through Mexico during the war between Madero and Diaz and I stayed six weeks in the war zone from Laredo, Tex., to Mexico City, and the way they shot and killed men on all sides at that time showed they were ready for chaos. The train I was on was attacked by Federal troops and at the next station we were held up by rebels. This happened seven times one night. If as bad then, it must be worse today.

"The policy of peace among all nations is the true policy and it will hold, I think, in the future among nations like Germany, France and the United States. They are intelligent nations. At the same time it is certain that it will not hold with nations that cannot reason. Mexico is in the latter class. Neither Villa nor Huerta are able, even if they are willing, to protect the lives and liberties of the Americans and other foreigners in Mexico. Villa has shown that he does not respect the life of an Englishman, while Huerta has shown that he does not respect the life of an American. Take the cases of Benton and Vergara, for instance.

"BRUTALITY OF HUERTA."

"The ignorance of Villa and the brutality of Huerta have led both these men to believe that the patience and forbearance of the United States is due to cowardice. Hence the solution of this question does not appear to me under either of these men. But one course is open for Republican and Democrats, army and navy men, peace men and war men. All citizens of this country who believe in the Monroe Doctrine must agree that nothing remains for Mexico but intervention by the United States. This ought to be done at once.

"For the army and navy to pacify the country it will take six months at the most. There will be small loss of life on the part of the Americans.

All this talk of loss of life on account of the frightful climate of Mexico is foolishness. Except on the seacoast Americans thrive on the climate.

"Americans have just as much against Villa as they have against Huerta. He has been the cause of just as many outrages on American women as Huerta has. Mexico has become a nuisance and a stench on the Western Hemisphere and war is inevitable.

"Wilson is not so much to blame as Taft for the condition of the country at the present time. The day that Madero was assassinated there should have been 5,000 United States marines landed in Mexico.

"Other Latin-American countries suspect us already and cannot be convinced. As for the question of money to finance the war operations in Mexico, it is a simple matter. The country is so rich all that this government will have to do it to rightly administer Mexico and she can pay her bills and be rich herself. The future of Mexico is 'on the knees of the gods.' But it very likely has a superb future under an American protectorate. Fifty thousand American school teachers in Mexico would do more good than all the artillery in the world, but we will need the artillery to put in the school teachers.

"It is necessary for the success of the canal that there be peace in Mexico and Central America. Now is the time to bring this peace about. Mexico will be the first to benefit by the opening of the canal if America insists and enforces peace in the republic that has had 200 revolutions in 100 years. The superior humanity of the Americans would make the conditions better with an American war than with a Mexican peace.

"As far as business is concerned, there are many Americans who prefer a dictatorship of the Diaz brand. Fortunes are made quicker under those conditions. An American protectorate for thirty years would make Mexico a real nation. Mexico is the finest piece of real estate lying out of doors and not nailed down. Mexico is the Cuban question raised to the Nth power.

"Mr. Hearst has had the right point of view from the first. The more Mr. Wilson talks about peace, the more the Mexicans think about war with the 'Gringos.'

"Every time the war clouds roll around I think of the service I saw as war correspondent during the Boer War and the trouble in the Philippines, and it is hard for me not to pack my knapsack and start for the scene of the disorder where the boys in uniform are waiting for the orders to advance. I am a fighting parson with a great love for peace. And there will be peace in Mexico, if there is war first."

Lieutenant Edward B. Cole, U. S. Marine Corps, of Boston, brother of Former Fire Commissioner Charles H. Cole, one of the detachment landed at Vera Cruz from the U. S. S. Prairie, according to a despatch received by his family.

BOSTON MARINES LEAVE NAVY YARD FOR SERVICE

Sixty-five marines left Boston today for the front.

They were from the force at the Charlestown Navy Yard, and were commanded by Captain William H. Parker and First Lieutenant William S. Harrison.

They reported for duty at the yard at 1 o'clock. Inspection came about 3. They expected to take the 5 o'clock train for New York, en route for Philadelphia, where they will join the Twentieth Regiment of Marines there mobilizing.

They marched from the yard to City square, thence went by Elevated to the South Station.

Meanwhile at the yard seventy-five men were at work putting the light draft gunboat Castine in shape for service. Orders have been received to put her in commission on post haste. She will be of the greatest value for river work in Mexico.

It may be nine or ten days, however, before she is ready to sail.

Four new three-inch guns were put aboard the Georgia today. They were originally designed for the North Carolina, but were diverted to the Georgia as the cruiser will not be ready to sail for a long time. The guns will be set up in the Georgia's mid-ship batteries.

Rear-Admiral Beatty, commanding, and the captains of the Virginia, Nebraska and Georgia conferred today with Commandant Coffman of the yard on stores. A Parrot Never Says Anything Original

And there are many makers of men's clothes in the same class—never venturing to originate anything, but content to plod along the trail that someone else has blazed for them.

On the other hand there are those who strive for originality and achieve only freakishness.

Out in Rochester, N. Y., there's a tailoring concern—Rosenberg Bros. by name—which has the daring to be original combined with good sense enough not to "slop over." They call their product "R-B Fashion Clothes."

They specialize on clothes for young men. They put so much snap and ginger into their styles and so much good workmanship into their garments that we could not, in justice to the young men of this city, consider our stock as being quite complete without

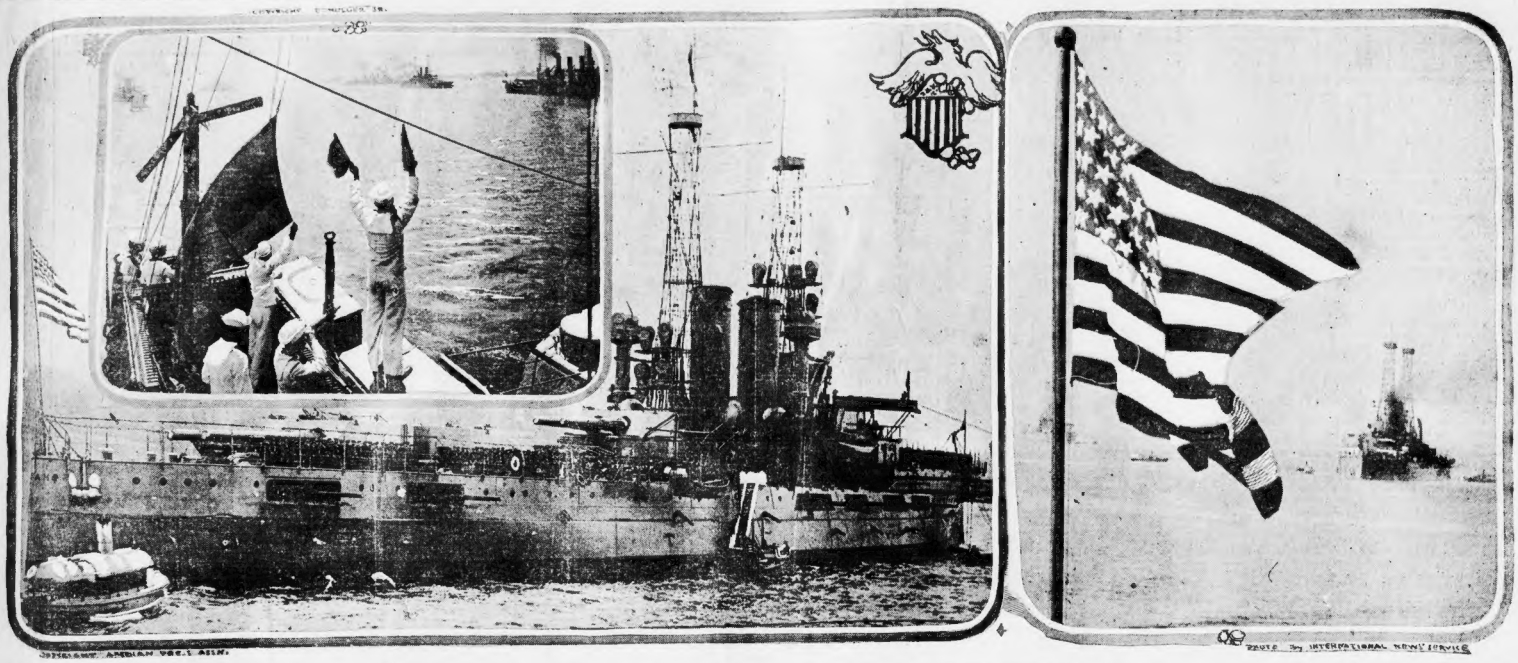
DETAILED STORY OF BATTLE AT VERA CRUZ, WHERE FOUR AMERICANS DIED

The battleship Utah, showing the powerful forward turrets and big guns. At left, a jackie "wig-wagging" a message from the dreadnought Florida, from which were sent many of the marines shot by Mexicans in yesterday's engagement at Vera Cruz. At right, the Stars and Stripes floating over the harbor of Vera Cruz, from a photograph recently taken in the Mexican port.



REPORT BRIDGES BLOWN, CUTTING OFF REFUGEES

It is reported here that General Maas has blown up the large bridge on the Mexican railroad just outside of Vera Cruz and friends of the refugees feared that all railroad connections had been cut off and that the fleeing Americans would have to make their way overland. This would prove a perilous journey in view of the present conditions.

All business was suspended in this city today. Most of the streets were deserted and shutters were upon the windows of business houses.

There was intense activity around the United States consulate with refugee Americans frantically attempting to get word of their safety to their relatives in the United States.

Marines Patrol Streets.

In this scene a state of martial law prevailed with marines pacing the streets and challenging any persons who tried to get by the lines established by Admiral Fletcher.

The United States troops who had been in the first landing parties bivouacked in the streets or in buildings provided by the American consul.

Throughout the night the sentinels paced back and forward exercising the utmost vigilance to prevent Mexican guerrillas from getting close enough to fire upon the American camp.

Out in the harbor lights flashed from the sombre ships and occasionally the thin rays of the searchlights flickered skyward in signals between the ships.

Shortly after daybreak the faint notes of the bugle came over the still water of the harbor and were caught up by the trumpeters on shore, who roused the marines from their first night's sleep on Mexican soil.

After sunrise the wireless apparatus upon the flagship of Admiral Badger began to mutter its official message. The sight of gigantic men-of-war ranged across the harbor and the early morning sun flickering upon the arms of the sturdy young marines brought a feeling of perfect safety to the American refugees.

The taking of Vera Cruz will go down in American history as unique for the ease and decisiveness with which it was done. The wind was freshening and the skies were clouding up for a norther when the first boat put off from the fleet.

Beginning shortly after 10 o'clock Tuesday morning the activity among the sailors and marines on the Florida and transport Prairie indicated action. The Prairie steamed from her position to a point opposite the custom house and about a quarter of a mile from shore. Her boats were lowered and the marines could be seen clambering into them with their guns clasped in their hands.

Almost upon the stroke of 1 the first boat with the United States flags ripping at their stern bumped the wharf and her men began climbing ashore. Soon 300 men were upon Mexican soil ready for action.

In the meantime boats from the Utah and Florida were putting off, making their way toward shore under the protection of the frowning guns on the warships. These boats, containing the bluejackets, landed at the custom house.

In the meantime formidable machine guns were being lowered over the side of the Prairie, and soon ten of them were stationed upon the landing stage. These were followed by several

YALE STUDENTS TO FORM A TROOP OF CAVALRY TODAY

NEW HAVEN, April 22.—Yale students will meet today to form a troop of cavalry for service in Mexico should they be needed by the Army Department.

Markle, the football player, and a number of athletes are taking an active part in the plan. During the Spanish War Yale formed a battery, and many Yale men went to the front with the Rough Riders.

The plan to form a cavalry troop has met with great favor, and many recruits are ready to sign the list.

IF SKIN ITCHES AND BREAKS OUT APPLY SULPHUR

Get Ounce of Bold-Sulphur Cream and Heal Eczema Eruptions Right Up.

For years common bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous affections, by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasiticidal, but also antipuritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in terrible and inflammatory conditions of the skin.

The moment you apply it to an itching or broken out skin the itching stops and the healing begins, says a noted dermatologist. Just common bold-sulphur made into a thick cream, feels such prompt and remarkable results, even in aggravated eczema, that it is a never-ending source of amazement to physicians.

While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the worst itching and irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Any good pharmacist will supply an ounce of bold-sulphur cream which should be applied to the irritated or inflamed parts, like the ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded is very welcome, particularly when the eruption is accompanied with itching.

This is published for Walter Luther Dodge Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

HAGGERTY DIED FOR COUNTRY, SISTER SAYS

"Gone; but he died for his country."

Thus Cecilia Haggerty, whose brother was the first American to die in Mexico, received the grim word today, and by her simple comment proved that the spirit of '76—of '12—of '61, and of '98 still lives.

The sorrowful lesson of war came home to Boston heavily today. Boston men led the landing forces at Vera Cruz, and Corporal Daniel Haggerty of the Marine Corps was the first victim of the Mexican sharpshooters. A bullet from a housetop dropped him in his tracks. Thirty seconds later that house went up in a smother of dust and dead when the Prairie's guns spoke their word.

Daniel Haggerty was the stuff of which heroes are made. He was Massachusetts born and bred, Brookfield his native town. He was thirty-six years old. The Sacred Heart Parochial School at Brookfield taught him his creed of citizenship and service. He was the oldest of seven children, three brothers and three sisters.

As a young man he worked on the Cambridge street cars; later was a machinist in the Blake & Knowles Pump Works.

His father was Michael Haggerty, and the family lives now at No. 16 Harding street, Cambridge. There was nothing but praise for the son when on July 24, 1906, he entered the service.

July 23, 1910, after four years' service, he was discharged with a certificate of honorable service. Six months later he re-enlisted in Boston and was attached to Company Eight, Second Regiment Advance Brigade, on the battleship Utah.

He was a member of the Nicaragua expedition, fighting against the revolutionists there, and later he saw service in Panama. Sustained and steady service raised him to the rank of corporal, and it was as a corporal he died.

"He is gone—but he died for his country," said Haggerty's sister, Cecilia, today.

Panic With "Gringoes Are Coming"

By early afternoon there were about 1,000 men upon the shore front, and the streets around the cable office and the United States consulate. They were about equally divided between jackies and marines. Before the boats of the first landing party reached the shore the Mexican clerks in the custom house had taken alarm and were leaving their desks. Word had ben spread among the troops in the Federal garrison that the "gringoes" were landing an army and panic spread. The Mexican officers were unable to comprehend the situation.

With an officer at their head a detachment of marines marched into the custom house and took formal possession. The Mexican flag was lowered from the mast and the Stars and Stripes were soon rippling in the wind.

"In the name of the United States government we hereby take possession," said the American officer. The Mexicans made no resistance. A similar scene was witnessed at the cable office, the cable camp being a Mexican government institution. Then the troops were deployed and the streets about the United States consulate were seized and policed.

A number of Mexicans, whose curiosity had risen above their fears, went to the water front, but were ordered back.

Up to this time no Mexican soldiers had been seen, but now rifles began to crack from the tops of buildings and church towers in the vicinity of the American consulate.

Marine First to Give Up Life

A marine, who had just raised his rifle to fire at a sharpshooter, fell with a bullet through his body. He was carried into the cable office, where he died an hour later.

An old church tower near the cable office was a particular source of danger and from the ramparts of this holy edifice a handful of Mexican civilians and soldiers were pouring down a sharp rifle fire.

A detachment of marines whirled a three-inch gun into action and Ensign Cresip aimed the first shot. It tore into the aged masonry, scattering stone and mortar. Four more shots followed and there were no more rifle bullets from this quarter.

At 1:30 the Utah sent a landing force to a point near the Mexican barracks. The guns of the Prairie were flaming and under this fire the boats made the shore without any resistance from the Mexicans. This fire was precautionary, but it later proved unnecessary, as the Mexican soldiery had fled.

Admiral Fletcher flashed a signal to the Prairie to discontinue its bombardment, and the moment the guns ceased to roar a detachment of British marines put off from one of their warships and marched through the streets to the British consulate. The English consul offered the protection of the union jack to any American refugees who might be cut off from the American consulate by the battle fire.

Furious Fighting in City Streets

By 2 o'clock the firing in the streets of Vera Cruz had become furious, and the Prairie was directed to drop a few shells into the quarters where the Mexican fire was heard. These shots were so well aimed that they drove the Mexicans from their improvised barracks.

Captain Rush of the Florida, who commanded the landing party, sent detachments of men to seize the postoffice and the railway terminals. The American troops had to pass through a seathing rifle fire from an unseen enemy, but not a man flinched.

With these strategic points of advantage in the hands of the Americans, Captain Rush decided that he held the city in complete control and refused to send any of his forces into the heart of the city and expose them to additional danger.

At 3 o'clock Captain Hughes came ashore. As he passed by a squad of marines manning a three-inch gun from the Florida he stopped and grinned pleasantly.

"Well, boys, are you having as much fun as you expected?" he asked. The marines cheered and one of them shouted: "You bet we are."

Reports came to Captain Hughes that the Mexican fire was increasing. At 3:30 he sent a message to General Maas, the Mexican commandant, saying that if the Mexicans were not called off the American fleet would bombard the city. After 4 o'clock the Mexican fire died away.

As night drew on the Americans attempted to get some estimate of the Mexican dead.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The army is ready to move. All preparations have been made.

Major-General Wood, chief of staff and the man chosen to lead the American troops into Huerta's domain, made this clear today.

When asked how long it would take him to move the army into the southern republic, he smiled and said:

"As easily as I could remove the correspondence from my desk."

The navy department was open throughout the night receiving messages from Mexico.

From the receipt of the first dispatch telling of the attacks upon the marines at Vera Cruz to the final word from Admiral Fletcher at 4:30 this morning giving the official list of the dead and wounded, the building was filled with excited officials.

Admirals, some in full dress suits, who were called away from social engagements, and others in their brilliant dress uniforms, lent an air of dignity to the week-a-day rush.

Stenographers dashed off messages from Secretary Daniels to the high officials of the navy. Telegraphers clicked away at their instruments.

Incoming messages from Admiral Badger and Admiral Fletcher had the right of way over all other business.

Expert translators put forth every effort to decipher the messages as rapidly as possible. It was due to these men that the world obtained the news so promptly.

WASHING WON'T RID HEAD OF DANDRUFF

Dissolve It, That's Best Way

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everyone notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

PLAN MOBILIZATION OF BAY STATE MILITIA IN EVENT OF CALL TO WAR

AMERICAN DEAD ARE TAKEN ON BATTLESHIP

Early reports stated that but between 150 and 200 Mexicans had been killed and many more wounded, but it was believed that later figures would fall below this estimate.

The task of ascertaining the extent of the Mexican dead was made doubly difficult by the fact that many of the enemy fled, carrying bodies of their dead and wounded with them.

Sailors who searched houses which the Mexicans had used as improvised fortresses reported that many of the dead were without uniforms. This made it evident that the brunt of the fighting on the Mexican side had fallen upon civilians. Just before sunset a party of marines was sent to hold Second street, which leads from the water front to the main plaza.

Machine guns were planted to sweep the Plaza and troops were bivouacked in the streets during the night to prevent Mexicans from approaching the harbor front along that route during the darkness.

General Maas, accompanied by his family, was reported to have fled from Vera Cruz in a carriage at mid-afternoon when the irresistible advance of the American tars was sweeping all before it. Some of his soldiers who remained behind took advantage of the chaotic situation to commence looting.

When the American officers found a number of stores and residences which had been pilfered orders were given to the jackies and marines to shoot all looters on sight.

At the junction of Calle Estand Morelos and Main street the Americans came upon a disabled 75-millimeter machine gun from which the Mexicans had directed a few volleys at the approaching Americans. Cramped behind the carriage was found the dead body of a Mexican officer, one of the few who remained on the firing line. The Mexican officers seemed to have been paralyzed by fright for they made no effort to direct an organized defence.

The dead bodies of Mexicans which were picked up in the streets were buried during the night. Members of the medical staff of the United States ships gave treatment to wounded Mexicans. A number of wounded were taken from houses along Montezinos street, where marines under Major Reid formed the vanguard of the advance. These men had been met by stiff fire, but, flopped upon the dusty streets on their stomachs, they returned bullet for bullet. Buildings in sections of the city were torn by shells from the five-inch guns.

The steel-jacketed projectiles tore through the walls or ripped gaps in the streets. During a part of the afternoon the sand dunes back of the city had been shelled, as lookouts on the Chester reported that they thought Mexicans were mounting long-range guns there to fire upon the fleet. Consul Canada officially reported to his government that he had informed General Maas that American troops would be landed if the Federals did not surrender the city. Three hours before the Americans were landed Consul Canada called General Maas upon the telephone and said to him:

"General, I am instructed to tell you that the United States forces are about to take the town, and I summon you to surrender.

Surrender Refused by Maas

"I call upon you in the name of humanity not to offer resistance or attempt to move any railway trains, and to assist in keeping order."

To this General Maas replied:

"It is impossible for me to comply with your demand for surrender, as I am acting under orders to the contrary. I desire to talk with you."

Consul Canada refused to consent to a parley. General Maas indicated that he did not believe that United States troops would really be landed, despite the decisive warning given him. It was also evident that he believed he could secure delay. After calling upon Maas to surrender, Consul Canada notified the chief of police and the jefe politico that he would rely upon them to assist in keeping order. As evidence of the unexpectedness of the American attack, a number of Americans, including women refused to leave their comfortable quarters in the Hotel Diligencias, the principal hostelry in the town, and were caught in the line of fire.

John D. Long Scores Wilson's Reasons for Mexican Action

Former John D. Long signs the following editorial in today's Boston Herald:

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

A judge was asked why his decisions were so generally satisfactory. He said it was because he never gave his reasons for them. President Wilson's message only emphasizes the pettiness of his reasons for initiating what may may be a bloody, costly and unnecessary war. There is an apologetic tone in it, as if he recognized his insecure footing. Is not the distinction which he tries to draw between making war on Huerta and making war on the Mexican people rather fanciful? Is there not also a lack of logic in launching the whole war power of the United States against an individual when he refuses to recognize as representing the Mexican government and regards as only a malefactor. And yet, because this individual, though apologizing for an official discourtesy, quibbles about adding a salute to the United States flag, plans to blockade Mexican ports and lands troops on Mexican soil, thus taking a war measure against the Mexican people, and thus inaugurates war upon Mexico as if its authorized head had made it reasonable? Hold your horses, Mr. President.

JOHN D. LONG.

BRIGADE OFFICERS AND PEARSON CONFER

Preparations were made by Adjutant General Pearson and his associates today to recruit the entire Massachusetts militia on a war footing the moment the word came from Washington to do so.

The adjutant general summoned to his office at the State House Colonel Josiah D. Upton, chief of the ordnance department, and Major H. Burt Knowles. With these heads he arranged for recruiting and also for transportation of troops.

It was decided to establish three mobilization points — Framingham, Westfield and Bridgewater, where the State has land—also three alternate mobilization points, which are to be kept secret at present.

If militia recruiting is begun at the [illegible] will be suspended as a measure

The first lieutenant of each company will be appointed as a recruiting officer.

Uniforms will be made at the armories and not at the mobilization points, so the State or the Federal government will be saved the time, trouble and expense of taking men from armories to mobilization points and of having them rejected at the latter places for physical unsoundness.

TAKE ONLY THOSE FIT.

In other words—only those fit to fight will ever start.

No recruiting stations have been opened yet, but to quote the expression of Adjutant-General Pearson today: "The events at Vera Cruz mean fight!"

The authorized peace strength of a Massachusetts militia company is sixty men. Its authorized war strength is 105. This means that each company can be increased forty-eight men. As there are about 100 companies the total recruiting limit for a war footing would be about 4,800 men.

The authorized peace strength of the entire Massachusetts militia is:

Officers	528
Enlisted men	6,815

The actual strength of the militia at present is:

Officers	493
Enlisted men	5,520

SHORTAGE OF HORSES.

The militia is fully equipped with supplies, arms and ammunition, except a shortage of overcoats in some of the infantry companies.

But there is a shortage of horses. The total number of horses required for the troops and wagon trains is as follows:

Officers	224
Men	454
Wagons	636
Draft	260
Total	1,534

As a matter of fact, the militia rejoices in the actual possession of sixteen horses. When others are needed they have been hired. There is a bill pending now in the Legislature to appropriate money to buy militia horses. Over 1,000 mounts are needed at the very least.

In general the State militia is ready to go at the drop of the hat. The only thing needed is the word from Washington.

Just how that word will be brought about is what interests the militia officers just now, especially those familiar with the legal end of war matters.

The Dick bill, under which the National Guard was reorganized a few months ago, was supposed to confer on the President of the United States full authority to call the militia out of the country, on a foreign war, as well as to order it to quell uprisings or repel invasion.

POINT STILL IN DOUBT.

But former Attorney-General Wickersham and Judge Advocate-General Crowder ruled that the President still does not have authority to send the militia out of the country, on the ground that it is against the Constitution of the United States.

The United States Supreme Court has never passed on this point. In the Spanish war each militia regiment was permitted, by special act of Congress, to volunteer for foreign service, which they speedily did.

MASSACHUSETTS HOUSE PLEDGES WILSON SUPPORT

By a voice vote today the Massachusetts House of Representatives adopted an order assuring President Wilson of the loyal support of Massachusetts in "upholding the dignity of the American people." The order was offered by Representative Lewis R. Sullivan of Boston as a substitute for the one he introduced in the House yesterday. The new order reads:

Ordered, that the House of Representatives hereby expresses its loyalty to the President of the United States and assures him of the support of Massachusetts in upholding the dignity of the American people.

Don't Trifle With Your Health!

—it is too precious a possession. It is trifling to neglect the little every-day kind of ailments. It is trifling, too, to take medicines of unknown or doubtful ingredients. If your stomach gets out of order, your food is not digested and, of course, your blood gets thin and you become weak, ready to be a prey to the disease germs always ready to attack the run-down and the anaemic. If your liver can't do its work, your blood becomes impure and many troubles follow. If your bowels are irregular poisons accumulate in your body.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY
(In Tablet or Liquid Form)

helps the stomach to digest food properly, strengthens the liver, regulates the bowels. As a consequence you are vigorous, full of snap and life! Forty years ago Dr. Pierce discovered that a glyceric extract of Golden Seal and Oregon grape roots, of queen's root and bloodroot with black cherry bark would aid all the digestive organs to work as Nature intended they should. Thousands have found that the Golden Medical Discovery he then introduced to the world has restored them to health when suffering from stomach and liver troubles. Now is the time for you to try this famous remedy and to secure for yourself a larger share of health and strength.

You can get the Golden Medical Discovery in tablet or liquid form from dealers in medicines—or send 50 one-cent stamps for a trial box of Dr. Pierce's tablets.

Now a Well and Happy Woman

"I took La Grippe—had terrible pain in my side, and the doctor said one lung was affected," writes Mrs. S. Taylor, of Arnold, Kansas. "But I commenced using Medical Discovery. Was in bed three weeks. Had cold sweats and was like one who was dying. I did not think I would ever get strong again. I used Golden Medical Discovery for about five months, and now I am strong and have no cough of any kind. We used Dr. Pierce's medicines in the family for a number of years, but this winter I tried them myself and they are all that they are claimed to be. I cannot praise them enough, and hope anyone using these remedies will get relief as I did. I often thought I would write you because I was tired and discouraged but thanks to your medicine and family medicines I am a well and happy woman."

The knowledge you ought to have about your body—and to enable you to avoid sickness—you will find in Dr. Pierce's great book, The Common Sense Medical Adviser. Thousands of copies have been sold at $1.50 each, but you can get a copy free if you will send 31 one-cent stamps merely to pay for the wrapping and mailing of the newly revised and up-to-date edition. MOTHER LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your child is bilious, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat, or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you will have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled.

CONGRESS BACKS UP PRESIDENT AS HOUSE ADOPTS RESOLVE

CONCURRENT VOTE GREETED WITH CHEERS

WASHINGTON April 22.—President Wilson has been given full power to use the forces of the United States in compelling Victoriano Huerta to make amends for insults to the American flag.

The final step in conferring this authority was taken at 10:29 a. m. today when the House of Representatives concurred in the resolution adopted by the Senate at 3:21 o'clock this morning, after an all night session.

The action of the House was taken by a viva voce vote in which there were only a few scattering "Noes."

Before the House had convened Majority Leader Underwood predicted that the Senate resolution which eliminated the personality of Victoriano Huerta would be passed practically without opposition.

From 9 o'clock, when the doors of the House gallery were opened, spectators began trooping up the stairs to the seats. When the crowd fell at 10 o'clock standing room was at a premium. Everywhere was a mass and crowding.

MANY DRAWN FACES.

Throughout the crowd ran excited rumors of new battles on the Mexican border and added deaths in the ranks of the American blue jackets and marines entering the ports held by Huerta. Faces were drawn with excitement. Members of the House and those admitted anxiously for the latest news in the press gallery which might reassure them of the safety of relatives and friends within reach of Huerta's guns.

When the House assembled at 10 o'clock the Senate resolution had not been received and a recess was taken subject to call to await its arrival.

At 10:12 o'clock the resolution was placed before the House and Chairman Flood moved the suspension of rules for the measure's immediate passage.

"When I introduced the original resolution on last Monday," he said, "I believed it was the best plan then to carry out the purpose set forth in the address of the President which had just been delivered to Congress. The resolution in that form had the approval of the President. It was promptly favored the approval of the committee on Foreign Affairs and of this House by a vote of 7 to 1.

SUBSTANCE UNCHANGED.

"The Senate changed the form, but not the substance of that resolution. The House resolution justified the President in the employment of the armed forces of the United States to enforce the immediate demands made upon Huerta and declared the 'grave and indignities committed against this government by General Huerta and his representatives.'

"The Senate amendments contain a preamble referring to the facts presented by the President in his address and resolve that he is justified in the employment of the armed forces of the United States to enforce his demands for affronts and indignities committed against the United States.

"The original resolution made it clear that this country was not hostile to the Mexican people and did not desire to make war on Mexico. The Senate resolution states this to so many words.

MISGUIDED EFFORTS.

"In this momentous hour and the circumstances confronting this country, prompt action pending and approval of the course of the President is of the utmost importance and it would be childish to quibble over the words of the resolution when the substance is the same, and this is the view of the President.

"I fear an attempt has been made by gentlemen on the other side to make partisan capital of the present unfortunate situation between this country and Mexico. I hope the gentlemen have exhausted their immaterial efforts in that direction and that in future sole aim is approval to the chief executive of this nation without a single dissent.

"In the bitterness of the debate the President has been assailed and his motives impugned. But when the air clears those criticisms will be remembered only to the detriment of those who made them; and the President's patriotic action in this matter will add to his fame and to the honor and glory of his country.

"The President has come to the Congress in a crisis that affects the welfare of our people, the honor of the flag and of our uniforms, and the glory of our country, and has asked the united support of the legislative branch of the government. Let it have it so that the world may know that the American people to a man are standing behind their President let party be forgotten when the war banner may have to be unfurled."

MOVE PREVIOUS QUESTION.

Flood announced that he intended to move the previous question on the resolution within five minutes. There were cries of "Do it now" from both sides of the chamber. Republican Leader Mann then made an earnest plea to the Democrats to pause before involving the country in war.

"We know our power as a nation," he declared, "and knowing it we can afford to be more careful about going to war with Mexico. It is easy enough for gentlemen to sit here safe in their seats and vote to send our soldiers down there. The gentlemen on the other side have talked of peace and now they vote for war. Well, they have brought it about.

"The blood will be upon your heads, not upon ours."

Chairman Flood answered with a brief denial of partisan spirit and demanded the previous question.

Speaker Clark solemnly announced "The previous question is called for. Those in favor will say aye." There was a roar of ayes from the Democratic side.

"Those opposed will answer no," went on the speaker.

There was a chorus of "Noes" from perhaps a score of Republicans. Then ground about Representative Mann. Many other Republicans and Progressives remained silent.

"The previous question is ordered," announced the speaker. "Those in favor of the resolution will make it manifest by saying aye."

A louder and more determined roar of "Ayes" from the Democratic benches echoed his words.

SCATTERED NOES.

"Those opposed will say no," said the Speaker.

"No," shouted Leader Mann, on clinched fist thrust before him on the table and "no" in lower tones from the Republican and Progressive sides who shared the views of their leader.

"The ayes have it, and the resolution is adopted," announced the Speaker.

Democrats clasped hands and smiled triumphantly across the aisles at the Republicans. Majority Leader Underwood was on his feet in a moment and asked that the resolution be signed immediately and sent to the Senate.

Republican Leader Mann objected. He demanded that the resolution go to the committee on enrollment in the ordinary course and that the Senate be notified of its passage.

After a few moments Party Leader Underwood consented to this arrangement until noon during which time the formality should be gone through with. Adjournment was immediately taken. For some time after the session broke up members of the Progressive party and the progressive Republican faction stood about Leader Mann on the floor discussing the significance of the morning's work. They appeared relieved that the Democrats had insisted on quickly getting the affairs themselves.

The resolution came to the House after its adoption by the Senate by a vote of 72 to 13, at 3 o'clock this morning. It had been debated for forty-eight hours and several amendments had been discussed and rejected.

As adopted by both branches it reads:

Justifying the employment by the President of the armed forces of the United States.

In view of the facts presented by the President of the United States in his address to the Congress on the 20th day of April, 1914, with regard to certain affronts and indignities committed against the United States by General Huerta and persons associated with him, and in view of the resolution which was adopted by the Senate on the 20th day of April, 1914, with regard to certain affronts and indignities committed against the United States by General Huerta and persons associated with him, and in view of the fact that subsequent to the adoption of the resolution by the Senate the following Senators and Representatives of the United States Congress voted that the facts set forth in the preamble of said resolution do not justify the employment by the President of the armed forces of the United States to enforce his demand for unequivocal amends for certain affronts and indignities committed against the United States, be it further

Resolved, that the United States disclaims any hostility to the Mexican people or any purpose to make war upon Mexico.

The following is the vote on the adoption of the resolution as follows:

PROCLAMATION ISSUED BY FLETCHER AT VERA CRUZ

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The following proclamation was posted in Vera Cruz at 8 o'clock today by order of Rear Admiral Fletcher:

To the Alcalde, Jefe Politico and citizens of Mexico.

It has become necessary for the naval forces of the United States of America, now in Vera Cruz, to land and assume military control of the customs wards of Vera Cruz.

Your co-operation is requested to preserve order and prevent loss of life.

It is not the intention of the United States naval forces to interfere with the administration of the civil affairs of Vera Cruz any more than is necessary for the purpose of maintaining a condition of law and order and to enforce such sanitary conditions as are needed to meet military requirements.

It is desired that the civil officials of Vera Cruz shall continue in the peaceful pursuit of their occupations. Under these conditions full protection will be given to the city by the United States naval forces.

It is enjoined upon all inhabitants and property owners to prevent firing by individuals from shelter or their houses upon United States forces or upon any one else.

Such firing by irregulars not members of an organized military force is contrary to the laws of war. If persisted in it will call for severe measures.

(Signed) F. F. FLETCHER,
Rear Admiral, U. S. N.,
Commander Detached Squadron, U. S. Atlantic Fleet.

RED SOX PLAY FINAL GAME AT FENWAY TODAY

After today's battle with the Athletics, the noble Red Sox hit the trails and make their first foreign expedition of the season of 1914. So that they can get on the way in time to make connections and open up in Washington, Manager Lake's party will start promptly at 2 o'clock. The Carnegian tribe will jump the fast New York and go to Lena Ive Capitol of the Capitol in his own precincts.

With a chance to even up the series with the champions, Manager Carrigan will probably start Hugh Bedient onto the mound despite the fact that the Athletics took six drubs to the tune of goods he hurled up the holidays. The "Bullet" will also be that same cold, and with a chance to win him, he very likely to come through with the class he showed last time.

It must be remembered that it was against the Athletics two years back that Hugh showed for the first, suppose it to be was something in the line of a pitcher.

If Bedient is not looking right, the chances are that Lewiston Bill will be called on to Rankin Johnson, who has been doing along in pretty good shape at his practice workouts. Dave will probably send in Bush, the world's series hero, or if that pitcher does not step well will send Brown or another one of his squad into the fray.

If the day's warm, Chief Bender may be put in for a brief workout, as he is anxious to have a fling at a real game and Mr. Mack is equally anxious to find out if he is going well.

After the departure of the Red Sox the rejuvenated Braves will come around for a short stay and give the fans a chance to see how they shape up plus J. Dave and minus Rabbit Maranville. They open Thursday with the Giants as their opponents.

HARVARD CREWS SHAPE UP WELL BEFORE MIDDIES

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 22.—The Harvard oarsmen are feeling quite at home in Annapolis and are getting in good work in preparation for the races of the first and second crews against the midshipmen next Saturday.

The weather is invigorating, and the members of the squad report themselves as feeling fine. Gardiner, who has been rowing at No. 4 in the first boat, and who has been suffering with tonsilitis since he came to Annapolis, has returned to his home in Gardiner, Me.

Morgan, from the second boat, rowed in his place, and Morgan's place has been filled by Brass.

The oarsmen are looking forward with a great deal of interest to the race which the baseball nine will play against the Naval Academy today and the crews will come tomorrow.

Rowing practice will be arranged so that the squad can attend both contests and give the Harvard teams some encouragement.

There is a lot of talk floating about that Connie Mack is trying to trade a few of his utility men for Joe Dugan, Pegh of the Red Sox Connie won't say anything but never-the-less he has had several conferences with Bill Carrigan yesterday.

DETROIT, Mich., April 22.—President Navin of the Detroit American League baseball club announced today that the team would train next Spring at Hot Wells, Texas.

Star Miler on Penn Relay Team Injured

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—Pennsylvania chances of successfully defending its championship in the annual relay carnival at Franklin Field on April 24 and 25 received a severe jolt today when Harold Hill, one of the best milers on the team, was pulled from the list of entries. Hill will be forced to remain out of competition for at least two weeks. Ever, who will run in his place, will almost two seconds slower than the former Exeter flyer.

SHORTSTOP INJURED SCOTT HURTS FINGER MAY TAKE A LAYOFF

Everett Scott, the Red Sox star young shortstop, may be out of the lineup for a few days. The thumb on his right hand is swollen to almost twice its normal size and is so painful that the youthful infielder suffers severely every time he tries to make a throw.

The digit was hurt in the seventh inning of yesterday's great game when Thomas, trying to stop Harry Harper from stealing, threw hurriedly and high to second. Scott went over for the throw and just managed to reach the ball with his right hand.

Fabre Blames Duffy for Losing Marathon

MONTREAL, Que., April 22.—Edouard Fabre, who finished second in the Boston Marathon, has arrived home. He is quoted with a sterling alibi for not finishing first, explaining his failure to win first honors as follows:

Sauce for the Gander

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

"I AM a young man, twenty-one years of age," writes a perplexed lover, "and hold a responsible position as manager of a shoe store. I am keeping company with a young lady three years my junior, who is inclined to be very lazy, of which I have repeatedly told her. Her answer is that she will act differently when she has her own home to look after. I am very much in love with this young lady and would appreciate your advice."

Every day in the week somewhere in the world some woman marries a man in the hope of reforming him, and her relatives scream themselves black in the face in unavailing protest.

Sometimes the reformation is accomplished, but the proportion is so small that the one reformed man is not worth the scores of women's hearts that are broken in the saving of him. But with this appalling record to discourage her, there never was a woman unafraid to attempt the task after Love has gained her attention. It is the most romantic, and, therefore, the most popular, road to suicide that life offers the female heart.

But man, on the contrary, wants a woman made perfect in the beginning. Imperfections, faults, weaknesses, vices, do not appeal either to his imagination or to his sense of gallantry. He wants no demand made on his sympathies or on his strength. He wants to be comfortable, with both his fur and his fireside kept brushed the traditional way.

This young man is thinking seriously of marrying his heart because the girl who now has it—a mere girl of twenty-one—has a way which, since life usually presents no Herculean tasks to one so young, he probably means that she dreams about her few household tasks, dawdles on her errands, is late in keeping her appointments with him, and perhaps through sheer shiftlessness lets her seams run unevenly. With these dark counts against her, he is afraid to let himself go on loving, a proof that he doesn't know what love really is.

He wants advice. Here it is: Don't tell the girl she is lazy. Contrariness is the dormant note in every girl's character, and the girl who is told often that she is lazy grows lazier with every reiteration. Praise her for what she does, and she will do better and more. Try molasses instead of vinegar. So much of the former is used in this country that you imagine a monopoly is yours by divine right.

Tell her often that she is your ideal and if she loves you she will devote her life to becoming that dream woman you are looking for. Buy her and be patient and tender with her, thanking your lucky stars that you have won the heart and the keeping of a good-natured girl whose only fault is a tendency to dawdle over the broom brush and broom. For the women, Young Man, who spend their time flying from corner to corner with mop and dust rag are the women hose tempers fly even quicker.

Dayseymaymeand Her Folks

IT is said of Mrs. Lysander John Appleton that she never puts the potatoes on to cook until she has been her husband turn the corner toward home.

"He might not come," she explained, "and the potatoes would be wasted. He might take dinner with some other woman."

"But, when I was a girl," she often tells her daughter, "I knew the men as well as I know them now, I'd never have let a potato spoil for fear of them to have bought my wedding clothes."

Mrs. Appleton does not know that Lysander John misbehaves, but it is the faithful wife and not the unsuspecting, suffering and outraged wife who has written to her favorite woman's magazine for advice.

"What," she wrote with a heart throb in every line, "shall I do? Shall I tell him I suspect, accuse him of being a Perfidious Wretch, or shall I Suffer in Silence?"

It was while waiting for her favorite woman's magazine to outline a satisfactory course of conduct that she called her friends together in secret session—which means that they could tell afterward what was done, but must tell it in whispers, that before the approved way for keeping a secret.

Every woman next day ordered a gold pin with the letters "S" and "H" intertwined. "For Shakespeare and Hawthorne," they explained, "it is a new literary club. No, our organization has no other purpose."

But to her husband Mrs. Lysander John explained the real meaning of the letters. "They stand," she said, "for Sherlock Holmes, and every member of the club is pledged to gumshoe her husband."

"But why," asked Lysander John, "do you watch and suspect me? What have I done?"

To which Mrs. Appleton made good and convincing reply, she answered that while he had done nothing wrong that she knew of, nevertheless she had a good reason for doubting him. It was this:

"My mother," she explained, "always doubted my father."

Four Spring Hats and How to Make Them

BY OLIVETTE

No. 1. No. 2. No. 3. No. 4.

By Olivette

THE approach of Summer is bringing some change in the millinery world. Hats are increasing in size and the plume, discarded through several seasons, is again coming into favor. The Summer girl fairly demands that the Watteau and Niniche and turbans with the extensiveness all be extended in front to shade the eyes. The new principles of the new hats are illustrated in these four models we have had especially posed for you.

The first is a modified shepherdess shape of lace arranged on a wire frame. The hat tilts up at the left to form a self bandeau, which is outlined by a narrow band of king's blue ostrich plumage. At the left side well toward the back is a high ornament of one plume of uncurled ostrich ranging in tone from the creamy buff of the lace to a blue just one shade lighter than the bandeau fringe. Clever fingers may manipulate an old plume and a bit of discarded lace into a hat such as this, for which the milliners of the avenues will ask as much as thirty-five dollars.

The second hat is truly a Summer chapeau. The clear creamy panama may be bought in any millinery shop, where may be also purchased a half dozen deep hued American Beauty roses and two yards or turquoise velvet ribbon. One of the roses lies on the front of the brim across a twist of the velvet which extends around the crown and then cuts through the brim to form a bow on the high left side. Above this nods a graceful bunch formed of the remaining roses.

Around the crown of the third hat—a leghorn—lies a wreath of scarlet cherries. Ostrich feather banding edges the brim, which is narrow at the left and broadens into a high point at the right. From this point extends a single feather, with others cascading down over the hair.

The fourth and last hat has an arrangement of bandeaux so deep as almost to make a double brim. The top of the hat is of black satin, with an underbrim of white. This is completely faced in a swirl arranged from one long white plume, which peeks through the hat via a slit at the right of the front. Caught to the brim at the right of the back are two upstanding milk white plumes. If you are deft at trimming you may copy this hat very cheaply by substituting tulle and flowers for the more expensive plumage.

The little figure in the doorway stood alone like some masquerader at a scene in which she had no part, but her ostracism was momentary. This wonderful woman of another world stepped, holding her boy's hand in hers. When she broke the pulsing silence it was in the low, soft voice of comforting affection.

"And you are the little girl my boy has picked out for all the world to be his wife?" She bent forward and with a sweet gesture laid on Gertrude's head, kissed her.

"Oh, mother, yours a peach!" the boy cried. "You two are going to love each other. I know it. Now, run upstairs and get clothes. I want to pack a few things before I join you, then Gertie and I will go."

"Jack! You're not going to-night?"

"Sure, mother; before dinner. Father's not going to recede from his stand, and you know it. I don't want any quarrel, nor to submit you to any unpleasantness. I'll let you know when we are. Now, run along."

She acquiesced, leading Gertrude to the stairs. With fidelity to her trust self she had trodden on the claims of snobbishness that shown this child her boy loved where her heart was. But she could not bridge the gulf so easily for his bride. There were others to consider. She must wait the verdict of her husband. Jack subjected the impassive butler who had remained a silent witness to this melodramatic pantomime of domestic emotions. He had no chance to withdraw.

"I won't take those trunks with me tonight, Rollins. I'll send for them in the morning."

"Very well, sir."

They heard the honk of an auto horn which Rollins recognized as his master's. He stepped again to the door and while Jack stood resolute for the minute, there entered Scott and Stuart, his kinsmen "Ikes."

Scott nodded curtly to his step-son. "Made up your mind to show some sense, eh? Glad to see you come home."

The boy's reply was as cold and less complimentary.

"I came home to pack, sir."

"Now, look here, Jack," said the older man, advancing, "this thing can be adjusted. Just drop this hardheaded attitude of yours and we'll straighten matters out." He smiled at Stuart. "Here's one of the best little adjusters in the world."

"I'd rather not discuss it, if you please. I'm leaving tonight." He backed away from the proffered hand and walked deliberately to the stairs.

* * *

"What did I tell you, Stuart," the imported declared as the figure of his stepson disappeared above the landing. "The boy's gone mad."

"Oh, don't throw up your hands at the first sign of defeat. I'll see that girl in the morning and pour a little legal oil over the situation." He bent his ear, and ten to one she'll be so scared that a third degree couldn't get a coherent sentence out of her. I think she'll take that job up in Montreal you spoke of, and that will settle all our worries."

They were interrupted by the return of the butler who stood up like a private waiting to salute, as silent and submissive as the servile Crane.

"Well, what is it now?" he asked, his impertinence unabated.

CHAPTER THREE.

WAR had come, and with it all its grim intensity had spread its blackened fingers over the destines of Bergstern and Dawsbergen.

Troops had been sent to the front almost immediately, the countryside far and wide swarmed with the forces of the cavalry and rang with the shouts and excitement of a large army.

Every bush was alive with soldiers crouching there for concealment, plans for attacks were made and abandoned, lively and unexpected skirmishes were constantly engaged in—it was a time of preparation, a time when the plans for a mere order-ly campaign had not as yet materialized.

Hardy's arrival on friendly soil seemed to quicken his interest in regard to his country. His journey had been one horrible nightmare of suffering. He realized as only a man can how unlikely it was that he would ever see Helene again. A woman seldom gives up hope, and while there is life she clings to life and happiness. A man looks at things squarely, and once the first blow is over his eyes open, and he learns that Fate is a risky playfellow to rely upon.

Hardy was ordered to the front immediately to report as an aviator, and wait for further instructions. Orders were not long in coming and Hardy found that his aviation lessons were to stand him in good cause. So, with the excitement of war in his veins, and his other troubles locked deep in his heart, he was finally brought to the notice of the commander-in-chief.

"You studied aviation in Dawsbergen?" inquired the old man gruffly.

Hardy acquiesced. As the name Dawsbergen fierce seemed to be standing near him, for a moment he could almost smell the perfume of her hair.

"Well, we need a young man, entirely competent, and willing to put all fear of death behind him, to undertake an important mission. For it. You have been recommended to me. Are you willing to take your life in your hands and set out immediately?"

THE COMPACT

Hardy looked up, and the eyes of the two men met. Then the old General grasped the younger man's hand for a moment. There was a brief embrace on the part of the younger, and Hardy had set out with his life in his hands and love, fame and happiness behind him, for the good of his country.

The mission was a solitary one. A special aeroplane had been equipped for his use in which he was to take flight over the ranks, ammunition and store houses of the enemy.

Bombs of all sizes of the most destructive material were packed into the machine to be used when the most damage could be effected.

It was an undertaking to make even the bravest heart quail, but Hardy was a soldier and a man. His mind had been trained along those lines from early boyhood, and there had only just come to him, Until he had met Helene Moulzel that wider way had never before been opened up before him, feminine allurements had held no attraction for him. And now, although love was sweet and life all way seemed for him the only way, still war was upon them and sweeter things must be forgotten in the perils of the moment.

It was night when the start was made on a forsaken field sheltered from observation by a straggling border of trees which effectually shielded operations from the eyes of the enemy, even had some of their number been lurking in the vicinity. Then came a brief whirling through space with the cool air of the night blowing invigoratingly in his face.

It was decidedly a time for reflection if he had allowed himself opportunity to think, but he determined to keep his brain clear and cool no matter how maddening was the temptation to let his thoughts wander. And then came the twinkling lights of the enemies' camp shining out far below like tiny stars in another world. Hardy felt as if he belonged to another world, anyway, up-there alone with the elements, with only a frail contrivance of man to keep him from being dashed to pieces on the earth far below.

His lips were set in a determined line. He was absolutely without fear as he skimmed lightly through the air, steering the machine recklessly and yet keeping the wheel under perfect control.

His eyes were blazing with the excitement of the moment, and as he pressed a lever the machine slackened for a moment almost imperceptibly, and the first bomb was hurled full upon the camp of the enemy, carrying with it death and destruction to many.

There was a silence as it dropped on its deadly mission; then there was a roar and a blinding flash, wild consternation and the horrible cries of the dying—war, indeed, with all its horrible significance. Then, without stopping to think, Hardy hurled bomb after bomb in the wake of the first.

Destruction and death were so complete and unexpected that for an instant the Dawsbergen troops were taken completely unaware, and wild confusion reigned. But only for a moment, for almost immediately the air was alive with the smoke of a thousand rifles, and Hardy was ploughing his way through flying bullets. The machine fairly flew under his tense grasp on the wheel, and it was with a smile of satisfaction that he finally gained the huge balloon court with the shouts of the enemy far behind him. This was the place where the most damage could be done in the shortest time, and as yet it had hardly been possible to send on the alarm, so for a short time he was practically safe.

TERRIBLE HAVOC

Hardy he slackened his speed and dropped one of his largest bombs, then another and another were hurled on their deadly way. Again darkness for a second and then a glare of light tore its way along the ground below. The balloons were on fire, one after another the great gas bags shrivelled and went up in flames, the air, even at Hardy's great distance from earth, was hot, the flames could be seen for miles around. More damage had been done in a few minutes than could be accomplished in many weeks. And then again the air was alive with bullets, and from the glare of the light below Hardy's machine was plainly in view. Bullets whistled around him, lodged in the wood of the machine, cut as much from his hand, ploughed their way through his clothing, cut the leather aviation cap clear from his head, and still he remained unhurt, directly in the line of vision, master of the situation, hurling deadly bombs that spread their swift destruction in the shrieks and cries from below, and yet he himself seemingly possessed of a charmed life.

Again the irony of fate. Below was the great balloon court, hundreds of men standing amidst the dead and dying with rifles aimed at a speck outlined dimly against the red of the sky. Around them the wreck of what had been the finest balloon court in the country, inflammable material still catching fire with each well aimed bomb, smoke choking the air from the searchlights that had begun the rubber and wood, flames and explosions succeeding every second, a scene of wild consternation.

While up above, one man leaned across the side of a neatly poised aeroplane and smiled, actually smiled at their useless bullets. Then he gave his self-satisfaction vent in a mocking laugh that was drowned in the thunder of the motor as the machine shot away into the night unharmed, like a great bird of prey. Fate was reserving other things for him.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT ISN'T A QUESTION OF SHAME.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of fifteen and very tall for my age. I am passionately in love with a boy of seventeen. I'm sure I know what love is and all the girls of my age do. I don't think any girl who is in love at my age need be ashamed to say it. LOVE.

A QUESTION of shame or not, a girl of fifteen usually declares her love. It is after she has grown older and learned that she never knew what love is that she grows ashamed. Of course, you know what love is; so does the kindergarten baby taking a red apple to the teacher. But the kindergarten baby forgets one month who was its teacher the month before. That is the kind of "love" you are experiencing.

CIRCUMSTANCES MAY EXPLAIN.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am acquainted with a young man whom I very much like very much, but he comes to see me only once a week, and never on Sundays, and he never asks me to go to moving pictures or to the theatre. How can I find out if he loves me? N. E. W.

IF he has to work hard; if you live at a great distance; if his salary is small and inadequate for more than necessities, his conduct is excusable. Look at his side of the story before you condemn him.

SHE IS A SILLY GIRL.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping steady company with a young lady for the past ten months. She recently attended a party to which I was not invited. Did she do right in attending? She also admits having had two young men, whom she had never met before, kiss her. There were no kissing games.) Please advise what action to take, and what is your opinion of her. STEADY READER.

THERE is no excuse for her silliness in letting two strange men kiss her. In that, she did wrong.

But she did so wrong in accepting the invitation to the party. She is not engaged to you, and it would be extremely foolish in her to refuse invitations because you are not among the invited.

LET HIM MAKE THE OVERTURES

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

After keeping company with a young man for four years we parted about five months ago. Recently I met friends who told me that he would be willing to come back to me if I will give in. ANXIOUS.

IT makes no difference who is in the wrong, he fails to show a manly spirit in telling friends that he will forgive you if you make amends. Let him make them. And insist that they be made to you, and not come through others.

DON'T ASK HER AGAIN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a young lady about six months, and every time I ask her to go some place she wants me to take a young lady friend of hers along.

What would you advise me to do? I do not wish to take her friend along. K. M.

HER attitude indicates no desire to enjoy your company. Suppose some time you take the young lady and don't take her friend. Believe me, it would have more effect than scolding her.

Keep him healthy as well as clean

An active boy handles a great many things in the course of the day.

Do you know that such things as toys, tools, street car straps, furniture, etc. are covered with germs, many of them dangerous? Even the dust of the streets is full of them.

These germs constantly attack the skin, get into the blood through the pores.

Protect the boy and yourself. Use Lifebuoy Health Soap in the bath and at the washstand.

This famous soap, as its clean, pure odor proves, contains an antiseptic solution which destroys all germs. It will not harm the tenderest skin—on the contrary, it makes it thrive and glow with health and life.

Use Lifebuoy every day—for cleanliness, safety and health.

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on stuffing their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods, fatty meats, pastries, "fat producers," or following some foolish physical culture advice. LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were weaker this afternoon. They opened with a tendency to sag and failed to overcome it. By afternoon in New York declines included Canadian Pacific 3¼, Southern Pacific ⅝, Missouri Pacific ⅝, Reading ⅝, Lehigh Valley ⅝, New Haven 1⅛, American Telephone ¾, American Can ⅝, Amalgamated ⅛, American Smelting ⅝, Northern Pacific ⅛, Baltimore and Ohio ⅛, Union Pacific ⅛, Mexican Petroleum 1½ and Texas Co. 1⅜. The price level at that time, however, was above that which had prevailed an hour earlier.

In Boston a drop of 45 points in Ahmeek was a feature. On a sale of four shares it touched 240. United Shoe Machine Common was off 1¾, Tamarack 1, Wolverine 3, Greene-Cananea 1⅝, Calumet & Arizona 1½, Granby 2¾, Old Dominion 1 and Mohawk 1. Boston & Maine had declined ¼ and New York, N. H. & Hartford 1. American Telephone were a little lower.

STOCKS OPENED WEAKER.

The New York market during the morning and up to afternoon was a reputation of yesterday's session. There was a downward trend at the start and the small rallying tendency which a few issues manifested soon afterward was not followed by a reaction which lost continuity. During the first hour, when transactions totalled about 75,000 shares, the declines averaged small, but later in the morning prices dropped faster. There was no improvement at midday.

Americans had been lower in London early, yesterday afternoon and a range of internationals abroad was narrow. London is now trying to calculate the effect of war between the United States and Mexico upon the world's money market and the country banking interests do not believe it will be of much consequence for awhile. Rates have been raised by hostilities as yet. There is an abundance of money on hand, and demand for accommodation by merchants, manufacturers and speculators is at a minimum.

WAR NOT AS INFLUENCE.

When the markets opened the news of fighting at Vera Cruz had surprisingly little influence upon stocks. Speculators appeared to be trading under uncertainty as to whether war is a bull or a bear point. But the rally which bulls had hoped for did not come. It is reported the Germans were sellers of Canadian Pacific in London today, and that some of the foreign business in New York was on their account. Traders are figuring out what connection war between two non-British combatants could have upon this issue. It is understood that Germany does not regard intervention in Mexico by this country as certain, but does think that Britain's having hopes of a large trade extension under Huerta, and believing that with the Wilson administration is in power British interests are likely to be favored in every way.

One explanation of the slump in Canadian Pacific of more and more than four points before afternoon is that the monetary situation in Europe has changed for the worse. The London financial correspondent of Hearst newspapers cables that the rumor that the Bank of England will raise its discount rate tomorrow is groundless.

WHAT FOREIGN BANKERS THINK.

Evidently foreign bankers are favorably disposed towards an American invasion of Mexico, else it would be difficult to explain the sudden drop yesterday in the quotation in Mexican Exchange.

By noon Canadian Pacific had recovered a little of its loss, but was still very weak. Among other issues which had receded to a substantial extent were Lehigh Valley, Northern Pacific, Reading, United States Rubber and Union Pacific. Such a solid investment stock as Delaware & Hudson declined more than four points to the lowest price it has been sold at in about six years. If this is a good time for investment as an venture in the stock market, the character of the buying indicated they are neglecting the opportunity.

COPPER METAL SELLS LOWER.

Copper issues ranged lower, but their declines ruled small. It was cabled from Europe that dealers there were selling metal at an equivalent of 14¾ cents a pound in the absence of any domestic demand the largest in this country is said to be not find it worth while to reduce their asking price below 14¾. It is said that small dealers find it hard to dispose of the most limited quantities of electrolytic at far below that level.

In Boston transactions in copper shares were unimportant. Ahmeek sold down three points, and Mohawk one. Old Dominion lost as much and United States Smelting, Granby and Granby continued weak. New Haven declined materially on a sale of 100 shares off more than a point. There was not much business in local industrial or railroad stocks.

LEHIGH VALLEY'S SLUMP.

One rumor concerning the decline of Lehigh Valley stock to the extent of about $21,000,000 during the period is that it was in part due to liquidation of shares valued at about $10,000,000 by the Central Railroad Insurance Company, whose officials fear they are not as stable an investment asset as they might be and that it is vaguely hinted that the Interstate Commerce Commission is about to take a look into matters under that railroad. At the beginning of the year the Continental Company owned 1,500 shares of Lehigh Valley, which sold as high as 168¾ last year and closed at 134¾ yesterday. The story cited to the insurance company has not been confirmed.

Lehigh Valley has certainly been weakened by rumors that its dividend rate it is to be reduced. The road's operating income for March decreased $61,464, although gross revenues increased $26,846—rather nominal changes. For nine months gross revenues decreased $3,270,625, a shrinkage of $2,702,483, and operating income $6,546,887, a slump of $2,731,404.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Net earnings of the Central Leather Company for the quarter ended March 31 increased $192,222.

An order for 2,500 steel hopper and gondola cars which calls for the expenditure of $2,500,000 has been placed by the United States Steel Corporation.

It is stated that Anaconda interests have offered to buy the business and assets of the International Smelting and Refining Company. For one share of the International and 2 shares of the Anaconda Company is offered, if the proposition is immediately accepted.

It is estimated that the United States Steel Corporation is getting new business at the rate of 25,000 tons a day and that it is shipping 98,000 tons.

The London copper warrants market was easier this morning and by noon spot was off 2s. 6d. and futures 1s. 9d.

Vote Against More Subway Extensions

In executive session the Legislature's committee on Metropolitan Affairs voted to report "next General Court" on the several petitions for legislation to provide for the extension of the present subway system. With three dissenters the committee also voted to report a permissive bill allowing the Elevated to build a station at Arlington street on the Boylston street subway.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

The motor truck bill now before the Legislature was fully discussed at a meeting of the committee considering the various measures held at the rooms of the Bay State Automobile Association last evening. Chairman H. L. Gilmore reviewed the work that has been done in a legislative manner this year and offered for consideration the bill which provides for a registration fee of five dollars for the first ton and three dollars for each additional ton rating of the truck. This measure was discussed in every conceivable manner by the various interests affected by motor truck legislation, and the merchant, the user and the factories of the State were considered, the idea being to secure the adoption of a measure which would be fair not to one particular class, but to all of the interests in the State.

Manager Charles E. Fay of the Ford Motor Company is expending four of these days transferring his oil service plant on Massachusetts avenue to the new factory building erected especially for the Ford Company at the corner of Brookline street and Charles River road, which will be here after all of the service work of the company will be transacted. This building is one of the most recent additions to this section, and it has been equipped especially to meet the requirements of the ever-increasing Ford business.

The executive departments of the Ford Motor Company will within a few weeks be transferred from Beacon street to the new building, and thereafter Manager Fay will have under his immediate control one of the most extensive motor plants to be found throughout the State.

Arthur L. Philp, sales manager of the Studebaker Corporation of Detroit, has resigned that position to accept the general-managership of the Dodge Brothers, of the same city, which is now preparing to place upon the market a low-priced car of its model. This announcement places the first authentic statement stating the plans of the Dodge Brothers.

In discussing the action of Mr. Philp this company has exhibited a commendable spirit to surround themselves with the best men in the industry. Mr. Philp is well fitted by years of experience in the motor and allied trades to fill the responsible position. He is a man who is known throughout the country as a clean, earnest and efficient official, conversant with national motoring affairs. He was previously the sales chief of the Morgan & Wright Tire Company, and upon the formation of the United States Tire Company was placed in charge of an important district. He has the promise of soon seeing the Studebaker Corporation as assistant to E. R. Benson, and upon the promotion of Mr. Benson was given the position of general sales manager.

Arthur Philp will certainly make good in his new position.
